TO BREEDERS OF STOCK, AND SHIPPERS OF CATTLE TO INDIA. MESSRS. MACKENZIE, LYALL, AND CO., of the Exchange, Calcutta, have the pleasure to announce to Breeders of Stock, and Shippers of Cattle for India, that they have established as a branch of their ousiness, a Horse Repository for the public and private sale of Horses, which being conducted on a system entirely new in Calcutta, has met with the greatest success and encouragement.

ducied on a system entirely new in Calcutta, has met with the greatest success and encouragement.

Their plan combining the advantages of an Agency with an Auctioneering business, renders it peculiarly adapted to Exporters of Horses for Calcutta; and its advantages (such as no other establishment in Calcutta can offer) may be thus stated:—

1. Parties consigning horses will have them well cared for.

2. Horses immediately on their arrival, will be carefully landed by experienced grooms, and taken to the spacious premises of the repository, when the best attention and care would be taken to bring them into condition fit for offering at public auction.

3. The Horses, if not sold immediately, remain at comparatively little expense, and receive the best veterinary and professional attendance without cost.

4. The Horses remaining continually on show at the Repository, stand a better and earlier chance of sale than under the system hitherto pursued. Remittances in part would be made immediately on the horses being landed and valued, either in treasury drafts or in produce, as directed

Mackenzie, Lyall, and Co.'s charge for commission on sale is eight per cent.; for standing at livery, thirty shillings per month;

WRECK OF THE MARY—SEVENTEEN LIVES LOST.

By the steamer Shamrock we have received the distressing intelligence of the total wreck of the barque Mary, Captain Newby, from Sydney to London, and the loss of seventeen of her passengers. We have before us a letter from Captain Newby, and therefore the particulars we give below may be depended upon as authentic.

The Mary left Sydney for London (with a valuable cargo, and a total of crew and passengers of fifty-nine souls on board) on the 19th May. It was the intention of the owners that the Mary should proceed by the ordinary route round Cape Horn, which is in fact the only one that can be considered practicable at this season of the year, when westerly winds are so prevalent. The Mary stood away to the southward, but when she got off Cape Howe the wind being at east south-east, and "the aspect easterly-wind-like," Captain Newby determined to attempt the westerly passage, for "although it was not a promising time of year to make a passage by Cape Lewin, it might not have been impossible," he accordingly stood into Bass's Straits.

On the morning on the 24th May, the Mary was off Wilson's Promontory, when the wind gradually increased to a gale with heavy rain Thinking he had now got into a westerly wind. Capt. Newby determined to give up the westerly passage, and accordingly bore up and ran to the southward of Sir Roger Curtis's and Kent's Group, At 6 P.M., he estimated the ship's position to be five miles south of the body of Kent's Group, fixed her course at east by north, and having been up the two previous nights, the Captain went to bed, there being then a breeze from the north-west, which was sending the ship seven knots per hour. The chief mate had the watch from 8 to 12; about 11 he called the Captain, saying he thought "land was handy;" but upon the Cantain going on deek he could not see any she refused stays and drove broadside on to the rock.

She first touched on the starboard bilge, then under the fore-chains, and immediately parted abaft the foremast, the bows alipping off the rock into deep water; she then struck abaft, unshipped her rudder, and the topsides floated off the bottom, over the reef into smooth water. In seven minutes from the time she struck the ship was in pieces

The most melancholy part remains to be told. Seventeen women and children were drowned, and what is most extraordinary is that not a man was lost. Those drowned were three of Captain Newby's daughters, six children of a Mrs. Evans; Augusta and Caherine, daughters of Captain Collins, of Illawarra; Mrs. Heather and two children, Mrs. Grey, Mrs. Turnbull, and Sarah Foulkes, servant to Mrs. Collins. How the remainder were saved we cannot understand, Captain Newby only remarks, "we were saved in the long-boat in the most wonderful manner."

The reef upon which the Mary was lost lies to the north-east of a rock described in the Australian Directory as Wright's rock, about

The reef upon which the Mary was lost lies to the north-east of a rock described in the Australian Directory as Wright's rock, about three and a half miles, and is known to the sealers who visit Furneaux's Island, as the north-east or Sleep (? Deep) reef.

After getting clear of the wreck, the long-boat bore up for the north-west point of Flinder's Island, where it srrived on the following morning. Captain Newby then set out to endeavour to find the settlement (where the natives of Van Diemen's Land reside), leaving the persons in the boat nothing to subsist on but pumpkins and what shell fish they might be able to catch. As soon as he arrived at the but pumpkins and what shell fish they might be able to catch. As soon as he arrived at the settlement—(when that was does not appear)—bread and other provisions were sent to the party, who did not, however, arrive there until the 1st June, where they were received with the greatest kindness by Dr. Milligan, the superintendent. Captain Newby and some of the crew left the island in an open boat, on the 10th of June, in charge of a coxswain belonging to the settlement, but they were forced, the same night, to land on Goose Island, where they were detained by hed were forced, the same night, to land on Goose Island, where they were detained by bad weather five days, but on Saturday, the 14th, they contrived to get across to the main, and Captain Newby landed at Point Waterhouse, and walked up to Georgetown (at the mouth of the Tamar), where he arrived on Tuesday last, and as the Shamrock was coming down the river the next day, he wrote a hasty account of what had occurred to send to Sydney by her.

Captain Newby was anxious to obtain ecked craft to proceed to Flinders's Island, for the crew and passengers, and as the authoritic a of Launceston had by telegraph directed Captain Newby to send word what assistance he required, there is no doubt that they would place a cutter or schooner at his disposal.

Captain Fotheringham, who was we believe the principal owner of the Mary, intends to send a small craft to Launceston immediately, to bring up the people to Sydney.

Captain Gilmore, of the Shamrock, says it was quite impossible any ship in the position of the Mary could have escaped. The channel between Craigy Island and Flinders's Island is full of sunken reefs, and seldom frequented from its known dangers.

Captain Newby formerly commanded the Duchess of Kent, and is well known in Sydney. We have always heard him spoken of as a steady experienced commander. The Mary for some years sailed out of Sydney as a whaler.

MONDAY, JUNE 23, 1846 " Sworn to no master, of no sect am I." CHINA.

Or late we have on various occasions drawn attention to the opening markets in China for colonial (New South Wales) produce. Papers recently come to hand have put us in possession of the official returns of exports and imports into and from Canton for the year ending 31st December, 1844, to some particulars of which we now purpose to call the atten-

The amount of value of imports was $15,929,132 (Spanish), or reduced to sterling at the rate of 4s. 4d. per dollar, £3,451,312. The value of exports was $17,925,360; or £3,838,828. The returns from which these amounts are taken were made by F. C. MACGREGOR, H. M. Consul, being from the official entries of duties paid from which the value is of course gathered, so far as the imports are concerned, while for the exports the "aveloncerned, while for the exports the "av turns from which these amounts are taken rage market price for the year, or an approximate estimate" is given.

The Friend of China " having reviewed the export trade of Canton," (and saying "which with the exception SHANGHAI, may still be said to be the export trade China," adds, "The trade of Shangha has not been officially published, but from private information we may rate it at imports £501,000 sterling ; exports £488,000 sterling.

The merchandise imported into Canton was conveyed in 206 British vessels, the aggregate tonnage being 104,322 tons. and 96 Hongkong lorchas, the burthen of which was 5,774 tons. The number of British vessels which entered the Port of Shanghai is stated as 38, and Foreign 5, the aggregate tonnage being 10,584

First of the imports we find British nanufactured woollen goods, designated broadcloth, Spanish stripes, habit and medium cloths, narrow woollens not described, long ells, camlets, bombazets, buntings, blankets, and woollens not enumerthe value being, of those imported in 1844, $2,898,866, or £628,087 12s.

The value of the cotton manufactures imported from Great Britain $4.723,870 or £1,023,505 3s. 6d.

We have stated the value of the manufactured cotton imports in order that we may not at any time be charged with having overrated the value of our woollen; - seeing that in 1814 the demand, if it b permitted to judge of it by the import, for cotton was so much larger than for woollen manufactures; seeing also that cotton is stated to have formed the chief import into Shanghai.

Some twenty-seven different headings complete the remainder of the imports. The last of them, indeed, comprises "miscellaneous articles not enumerated in the tariff," but the value for the year is stated only at $110,865; these articles are numerous; amongst them we observe coals, and bees-wax, and goat-skins, all of which might be sent from Sydney if any pains were taken to study the Canton

During the afternoon a discussion arose as to whether the rent actually paid for a house during the time of its occupation was to be considered as its "average annual value" within the meaning of the Act; or whether, in estimating such value, a reduction ought to be made to cover the losses sustained by the landlord in consequence of defalcation on the part of the tenant, or the sustained by the landord in consequence of defalcation on the part of the tenant, or the house remaining empty. The former opinion was maintained by Alderman Flood and Mr. Fisher, and the latter opinion by Alderman Flood and Mr. Thurlow; but no definite con-

THE MAYOR'S PARTY.

THE MAYOR'S PARTY.

WE hardly know what to term the "gathering" at the Victoria Theatre on Friday night. In the programme of the proceedings it was fermed "the Right Wershipful the Mayor's Grand Teetotal Festival." but this does not appear to us to be a correct description: for as at Aleast two-thirds of the persons present held that participation in those creature comforts that teetotallers abhor is perfectly lawful, it could not be a teetotal festival: then what was it? Was it a soirce! It was held in the evening, and might be called a soirce, but so was been party described in the Pickwick Papers, and yet Mr. Weller, who is no mean authority, ald colared that "he had never heard a boiled ty of mutton called a soarry before," showing Sydney in the list " From what countries of that the time is not the only ingredient that tendance, the St. Patrick's and the Total Abstinence) played an overture, and then commenced the concert, which was under the management of Mr. Deane, Mr. Worgan presiding at the piano. Every song was applauded, and two, which were in praise of teetotalism, were received with raptures. Perhaps the best song of the evening was "Tom Moody," by an amateur, and the greatest musical treat was a Mr. Howson's solo on the trombone, which was an excellent performance. Mrs. Gibbs, Mrs. Wallace, and Madame Carandini, and the Measrs. Howson, were the principal vocalists. The concert lasted until ten o'clock, at which hour the Governor left, and was followed by a large portion of those who were on the stage. The Mayor, as it was the anniversary of her Majesty's accession to the worship retired.

Some of the choice spirits then cleared away
the stage, and kept up the amusements by

And merrily quadrilling it,

And thus ended one of the most original,
most funny, most successful attempts to amuse
a large number of people of all classes that we ever heard of; and we are sure the Mayor must be exceedingly gratified at the good humour and good order which prevailed, and with the success which attended the proceedings of the evening.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.
GENTLEMEN,—You have before you an address signed by eight of the Bathurst Magistrates, ecasuring the writer of a letter which lutely appeared in your paper, signed "Justitia."

Is it true that two of the Magistrates who signed the address are alluded to in Justitia's letter?

Is it true that one of these Magistrates prevented the constables in the execution of their duty, and when the matter was laid before the Police Magistrate by the affidavit of Chief Constable, the Police Magistrate received the private apology of the Magistrate referred to, and the matter was hushed up?

Is it true that the Magistrates who signed the address are all aware of the above facts?

Plain but honest questions, gentlemen—will any one say that they are not true?

Sydney, June 18.

[We have received a communication from "Justitia," admitting that during one of the nights of disturbances alluded to in Bathurst, the constables did their duty in a praiseworthy manner—with which admission only his letter stands as it did before? It was only one night the police interfered, and on Friday last the same disgraceful scene again took place.]

the with Jones's house, denied having ever taken it i but admitted taking the one belonging to Duffey, and that Jones is had been taken by the person who was with him, and had been taken stockbeeper at the Wollombi. The horse is bad baken, he stated, he believed was dead, as if had knocked up on the road; but refused to give any account as to how he came in possion of the one he had been seen riding down. He was therefore remanded, in order to make some enquiries respecting it, as there is a way reason to suspect it has been stolen, and when the matter of a letter which lately approach in the present when Hall averred had taken his horse, as well as the party with whom it is suspected as he party with whom it had been will see the party with whom it had been the party with whom it is suspected as implicated in this affair, were remanded to the wey inconvenient hour at which the mail leave our town, (12 o'clock M.) for Sydney, assing now, when the days are at the shortest, and highly travelling, which, in the present worthed state of the roads, between this place and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads, between this place and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads, between the place and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads, between the place and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads, between the place and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads, between the place and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads and limbs of persons travelling by the state of the roads and limbs of persons travelling by the roads and limbs of persons travelling by the roads and the present when the present when the present when the present wh

INACCURATE CHARTS OF THE FRENCH COAST.—
We publish the following extract from a private letter just received from Etaples, in the hope that it will attract attention in the proper quarter, and lead to the adoption of measures tending to prevent a recurrence of such terrible calamities as the wreck of the Reliance, the Conqueror and other vessels upon the French Coast:—"On Saturday I went with—to visit the scene of the wreck of the Reliance, the one on the right the other on the left of the Bay of Etaples.—has placed the figure-head of the Conqueror in his garden; it was quite shattered, but he had it repaired. He purchased many of the relies washed on shore; among others the geographical charts of the captain, who probably owed his calamities to an inaccuracy in the chart of this part of the Prench coast. These charts are those of J. W. Norie, dated 1816, and entitled "A New Chart of the Part of the South Coast of England, extending from the Downs to Spithead." They indicate neither the double light on Touquet Point, which is on the left bank of the mouth of the Canehe, nor the light on Point Ornel, called on the chart in question, Point de l'Orient, which is on the left bank of the mouth of the Canehe, nor the light on Point Ornel, called on the chart in question, Point de l'Orient, which is on the right bank. You will do well to get this inaccuracy noticed in the journals as speedily as possible, and will thereby prevent further disasters. During the thirty years that I have known this coast, more than a hundred vessels have been lost upon it; and I have not the least doubt, that, without due precaution, you will next winter have to deplore fresh calamities. The flat sandy shore from the mouth of the Autlise to that of the Canche, is, in my opinion, more dangerous than the Eddystone rocks. A lighthouse of the first class ought to have been receted long ago, but it remains undone."—Patriot,

MINO, and about thirty-five miles from Goulsuan."

THIS ESTATE consists of three distinct portions of land, so chosen as to command a very extensive run, amply sufficient in times of drought for 2000 Head of Cattle, or 8000 Sheep; and during the present genial season for a far greater number.

The scenery is varied and beautiful; the soil for the most part whinstone; and water either in running streams or chains of ponds, abundant in every direction.

There are sir, ady erected at the head station a substantial and comfortable slab cottage, consisting of three rooms, with store and kitchen detached, a stable, barn, and dairy.

There is a good garden, fenced in, stocked with fruit trees, and a stockyard, recently put up, capable of holding 8000 L ari of cattle.

There are in all about 200 Acars enclosed, one half of which are cleared, and at present under entitients.

There are in all about 200 Acars enclosed, one half of which are cleared, and at present under cultivation

There is a Churcu in the course of erection at Gunning, and a resident Clergyman. The Mail passes to and fro twice a week.

BYALLLA is well adapted for either cattle or sheep, and at the present time when the profits both of Dairy and Sheep farming promise to be remunerating, while the tenure of Crowp Lands beyond the boundary is so insecure, it is scarcely necessary to draw the attention of the public to the exceedingly advantages us prospect such an estate affords.
